The Indiana public service commission, through its secretary, Carl H. Edwin Corr, a member of the commission, will hear the arguments, the communication states. In anticipation of an early hearing on this case, the council recently approved the appointment of a committee to prepare the defense for the patrons of the company, employ expert assistance and take such other action as it might deem necessary. The committee is composed of Mayor Burkart, John M. Lewis, city attorney, and Councilmen Goodale, Hoadley and Collins. Several conferences have been held by the committee and it is not expected that the city will ask for a postponement of the hearing unless unforeseen circumstances develop. SEMAPHORE SIGNALS ARE BEING CHANGED BY RAILROAD

Near Wreck Causes Pennsylvania Railroad Company to Change Signals on All Lines.

The semaphore signals on the Pennsylvania railroad are being changed. The company officials ordered the change after a serious wreck was narrowly averted several weeks ago. Formerly the signal arms normally in a horizontal position dropped down to clear the block. Now they are raised to allow trains to pass. A short time ago, unknown to the operator at one of the stations along the Pennsylvania system, the rod to a semaphore arm broke and the arm dropped giving a train, which should have stopped at the station, the right way.

DEPUTY FIRE MARSHAL MAKES INVESTIGATION HERE

Business Houses and School Buildings in City Inspected—Has Not Completed Report.

A deputy state fire marshal spent Tuesday and today in this city inspecting business houses, factories and school buildings and to make recommendations for the public's safety against fire. The deputy fire marshal spent Tuesday visiting the different business houses in the down town district.

The fire marshal inspected the fire equipment Tuesday afternoon and this morning. He was taken over some of the worst streets in the city in the fire truck in order that he could test it. However, the fire marshal has not as yet made any report of his finding but is expected to do so before leaving the city.

TAX RATE WILL BE FIXED BY COUNCIL

Ordinance Establishing Levy and Appropriations for 1920 to be Presented Tonight.

VALUATION ABOUT $7,775,000

While Total Rate May be About $2

The Various Funds Will Remain Practically Unchanged.

Ordinances establishing the tax rate and fixing the various appropriations for the city government for 1920 will be presented at the regular session of the city council tonight. The law provides that the levy and appropriations must be made before September 15 and the meeting tonight is the last regular session before that date. It is likely that the officials will be unable to definitely determine the amounts needed in all the funds for next year and such sections of the appropriation ordinance will be left blank and the figures supplied at a called meeting probably next Monday night. In case the amounts can be decided upon today the ordinance will probably be passed under suspension of rules tonight.

Mayor Burkart, who has been giving close attention to the matter of appropriations for next year, stated today that he believed that the tax rate would be about $2 on the hundred dollars. This may vary about ten cents either way, he said. The present rate is $4.02 and the proposed rate for next year would be approximately one-half of the rate for this year.

The lower rate, of course, is due to the new system of appraising property as provided by the state tax law passed by the last legislature. Mayor Burkart is keeping in touch with the work that is being done by the county auditor and council.

Hog Prices Lower.

Chicago, September 10—A drop of from $1 to $1.25 in the price of hogs at the Chicago stock yards today was charged to a panicky feeling among the sellers and to the reported intention of packers to run down prices at the start of the winter packing season, according to the United States bureau of markets here.

ENGINEERS WORK ON COLUMBUS ROAD

Grade Stakes Set at The Jackson County Line With Work Proceeding Southward.

EXCAVATION TO START SOON

Davis Company Which Has Contract Making Rapid Headway on The Dudleytown Highway.

That work on the Seymour-Columbus road which is to be improved with concrete by the Indiana state highway commission is to be started this fall, was indicated this morning when engineers from the commission arrived here to set the grade stakes. The engineering party is composed of R. E. Finley, supervisor, D. T. McCarthy, D. M. Van Euren and R. L. McKay. The stakes will be set from the Jackson county line southward. The north part of the highway will be improved first and the road connecting with the Ewing street pavement will be the last to be constructed. The Davis Construction Company, of Arcadia, which has the contract for the Dudleytown road, now under construction, will build the Jonesville road. The company expects to have much of the grading completed this fall and probably a mile or so of the concrete laid.

A number of new culverts will be built on the Jonesville road and all of these will be completed before cold weather, if the plans of the contractors are carried out. It is expected that the preliminary work will be out of the way before spring so nothing will delay an early completion of the contract next year.

The Davis Company is making rapid headway with the Dudleytown road improvement. The excavation is well under way and several hun-

MOONEY CITIZENS PREPARE PROTEST

Petition Asks Postoffice Department to Continue Postoffice at That Place.

DECLARE OFFICE IS NEEDED

Many Patrons Not on Established Rural Routes, Petition Says—Stamp Window Convenient.

A petition protesting the proposed closing of the postoffice at Mooney is being circulated among the patrons of the postoffice at that place. The petition will be sent to the postmaster-general and Congressman John S. Benham will also be asked to use his influence to prevent the office from being discontinued. Information that the office may be discontinued came here last week in a letter from Congressman Benham. He said the postoffice department was considering the move and if the Mooney people desired to keep the office they would have to file a protest within two weeks.

Stanley Martin postmaster at that place, was here this morning and said that the people there did not wish the office closed. He said an inspector visited the office a month ago, and while it was intimated that it might be discontinued soon, nothing definite was learned about the report until the receipt of Congressman Benham's letter.

The petition addressed to the postmaster general sets forth the reasons for continuing the office:

"To The Postmaster General: The undersigned patrons of the postoffice at Mooney, Jackson county, Indiana, have been informed that the postoffice department is considering the matter of discontinuing the postoffice at this place.

"We respectfully petition that such

PEACE TREATY BEFORE SENATE

Foreign Relations Committee Submits Document Accompanied by Six Page Report.

CRITICISM OF PRESIDENT

Demand for Early Ratification Comes From Administration and Banking Interests.

By United Press

Washington, Sept. 10—Accompanied by a six page report, containing sharp and bitter phases, directed at President Wilson, the peace treaty today was submitted to the senate by the foreign relations committee. The report was filed by Senator Lodge and represents the views of the majority of the committee. A minority report will be filed by Senator Hitchcock.

Half of the report is taken up with a defense of the committee work, criticism of President Wilson, answers to arguments for the treaty advanced by the president and its supporters and condemnation of the league of nations as a breeder of war.

The remainder deals with the textual amendments and league reservations adopted by the committee.

The demand for speedy action by the committee "was largely the work of the administration and its newspaper organs," the report says and adds that the same demand was "disseminated by certain great banking firms which had a direct pecuniary interest" in early ratification of the pact.

The report also points out that other nations beside this have not ratified the treaty.

Criticizing the president because the committee lacked information, the report declares the "responsibility of the senate in regard to this

AUSTRIAN TREATY CONCLUDED TODAY

Dr. Carl Renner, Chancellor, Signs Document in Absence of Any Formality.

TWO AGREEMENTS SIGNED

Enemy to Furnish Allies With List of Persons Responsible For World Conflict.

By United Press

Paris, Sept. 10—In the absence of elaborate details such as accompanied the setting at Versailles, the allies made formal peace with Austria today. Dr. Carl Renner, Austrian chancellor and head of his country's peace delegation, signed the treaty at St. Germain at 10:15 o'clock this morning. No speeches were made by Austrian delegates. Premier Clemenceau on behalf of the allies invited the Austrians to sign in the same fashion he had employed at Versailles before the Germans.

Aside from the peace treaty the Austrians signed two agreements by one of which they will undertake to indicate allied ships lost during the war which were sunk by the Austrians and another which obliges them to furnish within a month a list of persons responsible for the war so the allies may place them on trial.

MERCURY TOUCHES THE 97-DEGREE MARK TODAY

Light Local Shower Falls During Forenoon But More Rain is Promised Tonight.

With the sun beating down with almost mid-summer brilliancy, the government thermometer climbed up to the 97-degree mark this afternoon, scoring a beat of two degrees above yesterday's record. Because of the humidity the heat is as oppressive as during the summer months.

A light local shower fell during the morning but the hope of the public that it was the beginning of a "soaking rain" was not materialized. Farmers declare that the ground is so dry and hard that wheat plowing is delayed. The weather bureau promises showers tonight.

ULTIMATUM ISSUED BY STEEL WORKERS

Forty-eight Hours Given for Conference With United States Steel Corporation Officials.

TELEGRAM SENT TO WILSON

President Asked to Arrange for Meeting or Strike by Union Men is Inevitable.

By United Press

Washington, September 11—Steel workers' officials here today telegraphed President Wilson they would wait forty-eight hours for him to act to arrange a conference with the United States Steel Corporation before taking final strike action. The telegram informed the president that it would be impossible to hold the men "much longer from defending themselves unless relief is granted."

The message was signed by John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the steel workers' organization committee. It was sent following the reading to the meeting of the president's answer to a previous telegram asking him to arrange conference with steel corporation heads before today.

Norma Has Hard Work in "The Heart of Wetona"

A moving picture actress' life is not all peaches and cream. Most of the time it's just plain hard work. Norma Talmadge knows this only too well, but she has the nerve to keep on with her work, no matter how hard it gets because she loves her work.

One of the chase scenes of "The Heart of Wetona," Norma Talmadge's latest Select Picture, which will be seen at the Majestic Theatre tonight was taken in California on a very hot day. The Corn Dance scene had been filmed the same day and Norma was pretty well played out when it came to the chase scene. Only her nerve kept her going on the back of her horse. Many times during the chase the director thought she was going to faint and was about to order the camera to stop clicking but Miss Talmadge through sheer force continued to ride her horse.

Four full-blooded Indians who live on the reservation take an important part in this picture. They are Princess Uwane, Yea White Eagle, Black Wolf and Black Lizard.

Miss Talmadge has had the pleasure and honor of living with a real settlement of Indians for several weeks. The filming of "The Heart of Wetona," with Norma Talmadge as a half Indian girl, was done on an Indian reservation in California. "The Heart of Wetona" was one of David Belasco's great stage successes.

REPLY TO WILSON MADE BY JOHNSON

In Speech Before Hamilton Club in Chicago Asks, "To What Game Does Mr. Wilson Refer?"

DISCUSSION OF COVENANT

American Principles Left Abandoned in Paris by European and Asiatic Diplomacy, He Says.

By United Press

Chicago, September 10—The term "quitter" was passed back to President Wilson today by Senator Johnson, California. In a bristling speech before the Hamilton Club here, the California senator asked to what "game" the president referred in his St. Louis address and recited the list of American principles which he declared European and Asiatic diplomacy defeated and left abandoned in Paris.

Senator Johnson did not apply the direct epithet is he commented upon the president's reference to the opposition senators as "contemptible quitters if they do not see the game through" but declared:

"To what games does Mr. Wilson refer? Is it the game he started to play in Europe and did not finish, or is it the game that was played for him and in which he finally acquiesced? Is it the American game he finally played when he went to Europe or is it the European or Asiatic game? The American people are not quitters, but rose majestically and won a great war. They arose against a ruthless empire and stayed with the job until it was finished. When they played their game and won their job Mr. Wilson commenced his game in Paris and his game was to secure certain definite objects, certain specified principles and in the playing of his game the American people were ready to back him to the utmost and play it through no matter what the cost. Who quit the game?"

Johnson then mentioned the principles of "open covenants openly arrived at; adequate guarantees that national armaments be reduced; impartial adjustment of all colonial claims; self determination; no league or alliances of special covenants within the common family of the league of nations" and others as having been abandoned and declared it was not the American people who had quit.

FARMERS WILL BE GIVEN CHANCE TO FILE COMPLAINTS

Farmers' Association to Take up
Matter of Fixing Fair Handling
Margin on Wheat.

Indianapolis, Sept. 10.—Indiana farmers who have received too little for their wheat due to the grain men's action in charging exorbitant margins for handling it are invited to file complaints with the United States grain corporation, through the offices of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations. This invitation was extended today in the form of a joint statement by John G. Brown, president, and Lewis Taylor, general secretary.

Officials of the federation have found hundreds of Indiana farmers who have suffered losses on their wheat because of profiteering by the dealers. Messrs. Brown and Taylor, and Vice-President W. H. Hickman, who have been traveling over the state in the interest of the federation's $200,000 guarantee fund, estimate that Indiana farmers must have lost about $2,000,000 through this profiteering. The grain dealers, they say, have charged an average of five cents a bushel too much for handling a crop of some 40 million bushels.

"It is not for us to say how much is a reasonable handling charge," said the Brown-Taylor statement. "But we do say that when Indiana farmers get only $2.11 for No. 1 wheat, as against the guaranteed price of $2.39½ at New York, they are being cheated. And most of them have been getting only $2.11 or less. The United States grain corporation has not agreed to set a reasonable handling charge, but has undertaken to adjust any individual cases brought to its attention.

"Indiana grain dealers deny any collusion in setting a standard for handling charges, although they had a meeting and compared notes on some 73 elevators. Since that meeting, the handling charge throughout Indiana has averaged around fifteen cents per bushel. Last year, in Illinois, after the grain men had trimmed the farmers through most of the season, the farmers got together and forced an agreement that eight cents a bushel is a fair margin for the dealer. They received a settlement of some three-quarters of a million dollars, and we are going to take the same steps.

"We want every farmer in Indiana who has been charged too much by the grain dealer for handling his wheat, to sit down and write his story to us. We plan to prepare some blank affidavit forms, and our idea is to have them filled out and sworn to, before filing them with the Grain Corporation. Many Indiana farmers have already sent their reports to our headquarters at 406 Public Savings Building, Indianapolis, but we want many more cases. It is the business of the Federation of Farmers' Associations to push just such things as this, and we intend to do everything possible to see that a square deal is had in the matter of wheat prices."

"The public gets no benefit when we are trimmed by profiteers, for it goes on paying high prices for flour just the same. It is such profiteering operations as this that keep up the high cost of living, and we intend to do what we can to block the profiteer."

Federation officials have already presented some cases of profiteering to the grain corporation, and are awaiting decision. Thus far, however, they have not succeeded in obtaining a decision as to a fair handling. The eight-cent standard in Illinois last year was the result of a food administration ruling. In view of this fact, Indiana farmers are positive the 1919 practice of charging around fifteen cents a bushel for handling the grain, cannot stand investigation.

TAX RATE WILL BE FIXED BY COUNCIL

ty assessor and information which he has received from them causes him to believe that the total appraisal in Seymour will be approximately $7,775,000. The total valuation this year was $3,500,000. The accurate figures as to the valuation cannot be obtained until the county assessor completes the new compilations under the recent order of the state tax board to increase both personal and real estate in this city. It may be a month before the final figures are available.

The tax rate which will be fixed by the city council will not be final until it is approved by the state tax board. The state board will not permit any unit to collect more taxes next year than were paid this year without special permission. The city officials, however, are of the opinion that if the tax rate is $2 or under the state tax board will approve the levies. Such a rate would mean approximately the same revenue as was derived this year with a rate of $4.02.

In fixing the appropriations for next year some shifts will be made as a few of the funds this year were inadequate while others were excessive. The appropriations for next year will be made so far as possible so that the money designated for the particular funds will be just large enough to meet the needs.

The Man of The Hour....

You know him,—at least you have heard about him and you will hear more of him.

He's the sort of fellow who as a young man laid out his scheme of life and followed it through.

During the war he put his money into Liberty bonds instead of squandering it with so-called "good fellows."

He saved his money and is a national asset not a public liability. He is a saver of money, of vitality, of self respect.

He has faith in himself and in his country. He banks on the future. So he knows he must bank in the present.

He saves what he can each week. He saves regularly and watches it grow. He cannot help succeeding because he has the habit of saving systematically.

His savings placed in our savings department bring him 3 per cent. interest. His regular checking account has careful attention at our bank. His valuable papers are absolutely safe in our fireproof, burglar-proof vault.

Let us talk over with you our facilities for handling your banking business as well as his.

action be not taken, and ask that the postoffice be continued at Moon-ey for the following reasons:

"Both the receipt and dispatch of mail is much more convenient through the postoffice than it would be through rural mail carriers who call only once a day.

"The purchase of stamps and money orders by our business men committee was also hampered by the impossibility of securing the full information to which they were entitled from those who had conducted the negotiations. The committee was compelled to get such imperfect information as they secured from press reports by summoning before them some of the accessible experts who had helped to frame the complicated financial clauses and certain outside witnesses. As an illustration in a small way of the difficulties in securing information, it may be stated that no provision had been made to supply the senate with the maps accompanying the treaty and it was necessary to send to Paris to procure them. The only document of the many asked for by the committee which were furnished by the executive were the American plan for the league of nations submitted to the commission on the league covenant and the composite draft made by experts of that commission."

Own Your Home.

The Cooperative Building and Loan Association is ready to help you as it has helped hundreds of other Seymour citizens during the twenty-seven years of its history.

If you can make an initial payment on your home, the Association will loan you two-thirds of the appraised value of the property.

This loan can be repaid in easy weekly payments of twenty-five cents plus the interest on each one hundred dollars borrowed. In a few weeks more than six years the entire loan is repaid and you own your home.

The Building and Loan plan enables you to acquire property which would have been almost impossible otherwise.

Saving money regularly is another feature of the Building and Loan plan. Twenty-five cents per week paid in regularly, draws interest at once and when mature (payments plus interest) amounts to one hundred dollars which you receive at the maturity of the series.

See the secretary, Thos. J. Clark for full particulars.

red feet of concrete have been laid. Because this company has the Jonesville contract every effort is being made to rush the work as rapidly as possible south of the city.

The concrete work on the Dudleytown road is being constructed under the direction of an inspector who was sent here by the state highway commission.

The county commissioners petitioned the commission to send an inspector here, the only charge being that for his time and expenses. The presence of the highway commission inspector on the work, means that it must be completed according to the plans and specifications and to conform with the program laid out by the commission.

Delay on the High street road which is being built by the commission has been experienced due to machinery breakdowns. Less than a thousand feet of concrete have been constructed, but more rapid headway will be made as soon as the mixer is repaired or new equipment reaches the ground.

ially set, it is expected that a contract will be made with one of these without delay. The city committee expresses confidence that the present telephone rates will not be permitted to stand as permanent rates and that a reduction can be secured. The committee is anxious to have the hearing as early as possible inasmuch as the higher rates are now being charged and a postponement of the hearing will only delay the time when the permanent rates will be put into effect. Under the agreement by which the telephone company collected the present rates any difference in favor of the subscribers will be rebated, dating from July 1 when the present schedule went into force.

The council will meet in regular session tonight and the telephone hearing is expected to be discussed. However, the matter has already been left with the special committee with full power to act and to employ such additional service as may be needed and there is little left for the council to do except to sanction the moves already taken by the committee.

The committee expresses satisfaction that the hearing is to be held in this city. This will give local people an opportunity to hear the arguments presented and they will be better acquainted with the details of the case.

Elig Lot of Hay Fever Jokes

But Kerkzucky Man Says—"People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony are Kidding Themselves."

Wouldn't Be Any Rose or Hay Fever if Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance.

"Yes, there's a real NINTY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay or rose fever," frankly states a druggist in a prosperous Kentucky city.

"But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning."

"The annual crop of hay-fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get an ounce of Mentholized Arcine and by just adding water that has been boiled make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

"Many of my hay-fever friends tell me that by starting to gargle and sniff or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often fails to appear and in cases where it does show up is very mild and does not annoy."

"The Better Class of Pharmacists" who dispense Mentholized Arcine say it will greatly modify any attack even when taken three or four days after hostilities begin.

Go to a real live druggist when you get ready to make a pint.

Lucy had not left a card. She never left one when she called on Fanny; though she did not give her reasons a quite definite form in her own mind. She came seldom; this was but the third time that year, and, when she did come, George was not mentioned, either by her hostess or by herself—an oddity contrived between the two ladies without either of them realizing how odd it was.

At other times Lucy's thoughts of George were anything but continuous, and weeks went by when he was not consciously in her mind at all. Her life was a busy one; she had a garden to keep up, too, a large and beautiful garden; she represented her father as a director for half a dozen public charity organizations, and did private charity work of her own, being a proxy mother of several large families; and she had "danced down," as she said, groups from eight or nine classes of new graduates returned from the universities, without marrying any of them, but she still danced—and still did not marry.

Her father, observing this circumstance happily, yet with some hypocritical concern, spoke of it to her one day as they stood in her garden. "I suppose I'd want to shoot him," he said, with attempted lightness. "But I mustn't be an old pig. I'd build you a beautiful house close by—just over yonder."

"No, no! That would be like—" she began impulsively; then checked herself. George Amberson's comparison of the Georgian house to the Amberson mansion had come into her mind, and she thought that another new house, built close by for her, would be like the house the Major built for Isabel.

"Like what?"
"Nothing." She looked serious, and when he reverted to his idea of "some day" grudgingly surrendering her up to a suitor, she invented a legend. "Did you ever hear the Indian name for that little grove of beech trees on the other side of the house?" she asked him.

"No—and you never did either!" he laughed.

"Don't be so sure! I read a great deal more than I used to—getting ready for my bookish days when I'll have to do something solid in the evenings and won't be asked to dance any more, even by the very youngest boys who think it's a sporting event to dance with the oldest of the 'older girls.' The name of the grove was 'Loma-Nashah' and it means 'They-Couldn't-Help-It.'"

"Doesn't sound like it."
"Indian names don't. There was a bad Indian chief lived in the grove before the white settlers came. He was the worst Indian that ever lived, and his name was—it was 'Vendonah.' That means 'Rides-Down-Everything.'"

"I see," said Eugene thoughtfully. He gave her a quick look and then fixed his eyes upon the end of the garden path. "Go on."

"Vendonah was an unspeakable case," Lucy continued. "He was so proud that he wore iron shoes, and he walked over people's faces with them. He was always killing people that way, and so at last the tribe decided that it wasn't a good enough excuse for him that he was young and inexperienced—he'd have to go. They took him down to the river, and put him in a canoe, and pushed him out from shore; and then they ran along the bank and wouldn't let him land, until at last the current carried the canoe out into the middle, and then on down to the ocean, and he never got back. They didn't want him back, of course, and if he'd been able to manage it, they'd have put him in another canoe and shoved him out into the river again. But still, they didn't elect another chief in his place. Other tribes thought that was curious, and wondered about it a lot, but finally they came to the conclusion that the beech grove people were afraid a new chief might turn out to be a bad Indian, too, and wear iron shoes like Vendonah. But they were wrong, because the real reason was that the tribe had led such an exciting life under Vendonah that they couldn't settle down to anything tamer. He was awful, but he always kept things happening—terrible things, of course. They hated him, but they weren't able to discover any other warrior that they wanted to make chief in his place. They couldn't help feeling that way."

"I see," said Eugene. "So that's why they named the place 'They-Couldn't-Help-It.'"

"It must have been."
"And so you're going to stay here in your garden," he said musingly. "You think it's better to keep on walking these sunshiny gravel paths between your flower beds, and growing to look like a pensive garden lady in a Victorian engraving."

"I suppose I'm like the tribe that lived here, papa. I had too much unpleasant excitement. It was unpleasant—but it was excitement. I don't want any more; in fact, I don't want anything but you."

"You don't?" He looked at her keenly, and she laughed and shook her head; but he seemed perplexed, rather doubtful. "What was the name of the grove?" he asked. "The Indian name, I mean."

"Mola-Haha."
"No, it wasn't; that wasn't the name you said."

"I've forgotten."
"I see you have," he said, his look of perplexity remaining. "Perhaps you remember the chief's name better."

She shook her head again. "I don't!" At this he laughed, but not very heartily, and walked slowly to the house, leaving her bending over a rose bush, and a shade more pensive than the most pensive garden lady in any Victorian engraving. . . . Next day, it happened that this same "Vendonah" or "Rides-Down-Everything" became the subject of a chance conversation between Eugene and his old friend Kinney, father of the fire-topped Fred. The two gentlemen found themselves smoking in neighboring leather chairs beside a broad window at the club, after lunch.

Mr. Kinney had remarked that he expected to get his family established at the seashore by the Fourth of July, and, following a train of thought, he paused and chuckled. "Fourth of July reminds me," he said. "Have you heard what that Georgie Minafer is doing?"

"No, I haven't," said Eugene, and his friend failed to notice the crispness of the utterance.

"Well, sir," Kinney chuckled again, "it beats the devil! My boy Fred told me about it yesterday. He's a friend of this young Henry Akers, son of F. P. Akers of the Akers Chemical company. It seems this young Akers asked Fred if he knew a fellow named Minafer, because he knew Fred had always lived here, and young Akers had heard some way that Minafer used to be an old family name here, and was sort of curious about it. Well, sir, you remember this young Georgie sort of disappeared, after his grandfather's death, and nobody seemed to know much what had become of him—though I did hear, once or twice, that he was still around somewhere. Well, sir, he's working for the Akers Chemical company, out at their plant on the Thomasville road."

He paused, seeming to reserve something to be delivered only upon inquiry, and Eugene offered him the expected question, but only after a cold glance through the nose-glasses he had lately found it necessary to adopt. "What does he do?"

Kinney laughed and slapped the arm of his chair. "He's a nitro-glycerin expert!"

He was gratified to see that Eugene was surprised, if not, indeed, a little startled.

"He's what?"

"He's an expert on nitro-glycerin. Doesn't that beat the devil! Yes, sir! Young Akers told Fred that this Georgie Minafer had worked like a hound-dog ever since he got started out at the works. They have a special plant for nitro-glycerin, way off from the main plant, of course—in the woods somewhere—and Georgie Minafer's been working there, and lately they put him in charge of it. He oversees shooting oil wells, too, and shoots 'em himself, sometimes. They aren't allowed to carry it on the railroads, you know—have to team it. Young Akers says Georgie rides around over the bumpy roads, sitting on as much as three hundred quarts of nitro-glycerin! My Lord! Talk about romantic tumbles! If he gets blown sky-high some day he won't have a bigger drop, when he comes down, than he's already had! Don't it beat the devil! Young Akers said he's got all the nerve there is in the world. Says he gets a fair salary, and I should think he ought to! Seems to me I've heard the average life in that sort of work is somewhere around four years, and agents don't write any insurance at all for nitro-glycerin experts. Hardly!"

"No," said Eugene. "I suppose not." Kinney rose to go. "Well, it's a pretty funny thing—pretty odd, I mean—and I suppose it would be pass-around-the-hat for old Fanny Minafer if he blew up. Fred told me that they're living in some apartment house, and said Georgie supports her. He was going to study law, but couldn't earn enough that way to take care of Fanny, so he gave it up. Fred's wife told him all this. Says Fanny doesn't do anything but play bridge these days. Got to playing too high for awhile and lost more than she wanted to tell Georgie about, and borrowed a little from old Frank Bronson. Paid him back, though. Don't know how Fred's wife heard it. Women do hear the darndest things!"

"They do," Eugene agreed.
"Well, I'm off to the store," said Mr. Kinney briskly; yet he lingered. "I suppose we'll all have to club in and keep old Fanny out of the poorhouse if he does blow up. From all I hear it's usually only a question of time. They say she hasn't got anything else to depend on."

"I suppose not."
"Well—I wondered—" Kinney hesitated. "I was wondering why you hadn't thought of finding something around your works for him. You used to be such a tremendous friend of the family—I thought perhaps you—of course I know he's a queer lot—I know he's—"

"Yes, I think he is," said Eugene. "No, I haven't anything to offer him." "I suppose not," Kinney returned thoughtfully, as he went on. "I don't know that I would myself. Well, we'll probably see his name in the papers some day if he stays with that job!"

However, the nitro-glycerin expert of whom they spoke did not get into the papers as a consequence of being blown up, although his daily life was certainly a continuous exposure to that risk. Destiny has a constant passion for the incongruous, and it was George's lot to manipulate wholesale quantities of terrific and volatile explosives in safety, and to be laid low by an accident so commonplace and inconsequent that it was a comedy. Fate had reserved for him the final insult of riding him down under the wheels of one of those juggernauts at which he had once shouted "Git a boss!" Nevertheless, Fate's ironic choice for Georgie's undoing was not a big and swift and momentous car, such as Eugene manufactured; it was a specimen of the hustling little type that was flooding the country, the cheapest, commonest, hardest little car ever made.

The accident took place upon a Sunday morning, on a downtown crossing, with the streets almost empty, and no reason in the world for such a thing to happen. He had gone out for his Sunday morning walk, and he was thinking of an automobile at the very moment when the little car struck him; he was thinking of a shiny landaulet and a charming figure stepping into it, and of the quick gesture of a white glove toward the chauffeur, motioning him to go on. George heard a shout, but did not look up, for he could not imagine anybody's shouting at him, and he was too engrossed in the question "Was it Lucy?" He could not decide, and his lack of decision in this matter probably superinduced a lack of decision in another, more pressingly vital. At the second and louder shout he did look up; and the car was almost on him; but he could not make up his mind if the charming little figure he had seen was Lucy's and he could not make up his mind whether to go backward or forward; these questions became entangled in his mind. Then, still not being able to decide which of two ways to go, he tried to go both—and the little car ran him down. It was not moving very rapidly, but it went all the way over George.

He was conscious of gigantic violence; of roaring and jolting and concussion; of choking clouds of dust, shot with lightning, about his head; he heard snapping sounds as loud as shots from a small pistol, and was stabbed by excruciating pains in his legs. Then he became aware that the machine was being lifted off of him. People were gathering in a circle round him, gabbling.

His forehead was bedewed with the sweat of anguish, and he tried to wipe off this dampness, but failed. He could not get his arm that far.

"Nev' mind," a policeman said; and George could see above his eyes the skirts of the blue coat, covered with dust and sunshine. "Ambulance here in a minute. Nev' mind tryin' to move any. You want 'em to send for some special doctor?"

"No," George's lips formed the word. "Or to take you to some private hospital?"

"Tell them to take me," he said faintly, "to the City hospital."

"A' right."
A smallish young man in a duster fidgeted among the crowd, explaining and protesting and a strident-voiced girl, his companion, supported his argument, declaring to everyone her willingness to offer testimony in any court of law that every blessed word he said was the God's truth.

"It's the fella that hit you," the policeman said, looking down on George. "I guess he's right; you must of b'en thinkin' about somep'n or other. It's wunnerful the damage them little machines can do—you'd never think it—but I guess they ain't much case ag'in this fella that was drivin' it."

"You bet your life they ain't no case on me!" the young man in the duster agreed, with great bitterness. He came and stood at George's feet, addressing him heatedly: "I'm sorry fer you all right, and I don't say I ain't. I hold nothin' against you, but it wasn't any more my fault than the statehouse! Wasn't goin' a step over eight miles an hour! I'm perfectly willing to say I'm sorry for you though, and so's the lady with me. We're both willing to say that much, but that's all, understand!"

George's drawn eyelids twitched; his misted glance rested fleetingly upon the two protesting motorists, and the old imperious spirit within him flickered up in a single word. Lying on his back in the middle of the street, where he was regarded by an increasing public as an unpleasant curiosity,

Flour is Cheap

The 5 cent loaf is gone but the price of

had little to do with its going. If the government should furnish the baker with his flour free, still he could not give us the old 5 cent loaf.

G. H. Anderson Bulletin.

I have a car of Aviston Special Flour on hand out of old wheat. This has been tried, having sold one car load, and has proven to be satisfactory. It is guaranteed to be as good a patent flour as there is on the market, no exceptions whatever. I have a full stock of feeds—hominy feed, cracked corn, middlings, bran, horse feed, dairy feed, and all kinds of feed for all purposes. I am in the market for all the wheat, I can get, and will assure a square deal in regard to grades and price. Also rye, oats and corn at the top price. I will be open evenings to receive wheat. j8d&wtf G. H. Anderson.
